Prescribed Burning at Prime Hook National Wildlife Refuge

Prime Hook National Wildlife Refuge, in partnership with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Zone Fire Staff from the Blackwater National Wildlife Refuge in Cambridge, Maryland, local fire departments, and the Delaware Forest Service, will soon begin a burning program at the refuge. This year's plan includes a total of nearly 90 acres of successional field and will take place in April contingent upon optimal burn conditions.

The purposes for this year's burn will be to set back succession to early stages to benefit grassland dwelling birds, counteract against undesired plant species and remove accumulated wildland hazardous fuels as planned in the refuge's Comprehensive Conservation Plan. The use of prescribed fire is an effective and cost efficient method to accomplish these objectives. Trained prescribed burning specialists will conduct the burns.

Weather conditions such as rainfall and wind speed and direction will determine when the burning will occur. Prime Hook Refuge's website will be updated frequently to inform the public regarding daily plans.

The Prime Hook National Wildlife Refuge consists of over 10,144 acres of marsh, forest and uplands along the Delaware Bay between Slaughter Beach and Broadkill Beach, east of Milton.
